The Task

Southern Cross is a very multi-cultural school community. Hence as a group we wanted to display this fact visually. The task was extremely challenging as all students were asked to think about their cultural heritage and try to represent their culture in the form of a person. Some students used their cultural dress or costume to dress their person. However for the Australian students the task was a challenge because after much discussion it was agreed rightly or wrongly that Australia doesn’t have one specific national costume but many costumes that are uniquely Australian. I feel that the students have done a marvellous job of highlighting their culture. See more of their fabulous work in the office foyer.
